Wed night 21 May 1941

Two hours before British bombers arrived Bismarck vanished into northern waters.

Admiral J.C. Tovey, Commanding at Scapa Flow, already had cruisers Norfolk and Suffolk guarding Denmark Strait (narrowed by Greenland's ice shelf). He now sent three cruisers to cover the wide passage between

Iceland and the Faeroes and headed west in the battleship King George V, in company with the carrier Victorious.

Already south of Iceland were the battleship Prince of Wales and the vaunted battle cruiser Hood (less armament for increased speed)

Sat 24 May 1941

The British Admiralty ordered the battleship Renown, Aircraft carrier Ark Royal and cruiser Sheffield up from Gibraltar on Sat 24 May 41

6am Mon May 26, 1941

The battle against the Bismarck started. Bismarck turned left.

Her fifth salvo penetrated Hood's flaming deck armor and struck the main magazine. The peak of the Royal Navy broke in two and blew up taking Admiral Holland and all but 4 survivors of her 1500 crew to the bottom. Prince of water made smoke and retreated - she had actually hit Bismarck twice, sprung an oil leak and knocking out a boiler room, reducing her speed.

A fleet of biplane torpedoes from Victorious attacked, but the one that bounced off the armor,

Bismarck was now too low on fuel to continue the raid; she sent Prinz Eugen on ahead, and headed for Brest, shaking off the surrounding cruisers & made a run for Brest (under German guns & planes) mm 26 May 1941

British lost Bismarck, but again located her when she broke radio silence to inform Berlin of her intentions. Only the ships from Gibraltar were in position. Sheffield found her. Just then planes from the Ark Royal came up & attacked Sheffield (2 stocks - Bismarck 1 shot) the planes returned to Ark Royal refueled, rearmed & returned. They attacked the Bismarck from all angles. Bismarck turned to avoid a torpedo coming from ahead which then struck her under gunned it. She could only go in crisis. They harried Bismarck all 24 night

Tue AM 27 May 1941

King George V and battleship Rodney closed in for the kill with cruiser Norfolk and Dorsetshire adding their 8-in salvos to the heavies, King George V with fuel nearly exhausted had to break off. Dorsetshire sent 3 torpedoes into Bismarck.

At 10:30 AM, Bismarck turned turtle and sank

It had taken the combined efforts of 8 battleships and battle cruisers; 2 aircraft carriers, 11 cruisers, 21 destroyers, six submarines and more than 300 air sorties to sink her; some 60 torpedoes had been fired at her (with at most 4 hitting before Dorsetshire's 3)

About 60 survivors had been picked out of the icy waters when German submarines were suspected, so they left. U boats plucked 3 Bismarck survivors off one raft & next night 2 more all survivors of crew 81, 982 men

May 26, 1941

A reconnaissance plane out of Northern Ireland spots Bismarck, now near $50^{\circ}N$ & $22^{\circ}W$, almost within protective cover of LUFTWAFFE aircraft based in France.

In a desperate attempt to slow Bismarck, torpedo planes from Ark Royal attack & score two confirmed hits, one amidships and the other astern. Amidships does little damage, but the one in the stem joins Bismarck's rudders irreparably, so that the ship can only steam into the wind (This is directly toward the British Forces

May 27, 1941

After a night of attacks by British destroyers, the Bismarck, unable to steer heads into a heavy North west winds.

Soon her fire-control system and then her main turrets are knocked out. H.M.S. ROONEY & KING George V pour in 14" & 16" shells at point blank range on the port side while NORFOLK and DORSETSHIRE rake the starboard.

By 10 A.M. Bismarck is a battered derelict the German Commander ordered the ship scuttled. In a Coup de Grace Dorsetshire fired 3 torpedoes.

At about 10:40 A.M. Bismarck slides beneath the waves.
